

Activity 4: Network Mapping

Draw a small image in the middle of the page that represents your nonprofit. Write a few bullet points about what your nonprofit needs below the image. (Hint: it's a common saying that nonprofits tap into people's time, treasure, and talent)

Along the left edge of your paper, list groups of people you know. This list might start with friends and families, and expand to include clubs, internet communities, faith groups, etc.

Next to each group name write a few individual names of people who might be willing to help.

Along the right edge of your paper, list groups or institutions that want to see your community thrive. This list should start with community members themselves, and may also include employers, public safety agencies, local government, faith and civic groups, etc.

Next to each group name, write a few names or titles of people who might be interested in supporting your efforts.
